WWW.ARMY.MIL MISSION

The Army's public web site, WWW.ARMY.MIL, is The Army's only communicative tool that maintains a connection with the American public and the global audience 24/7/365. The Army is serving a Nation at war and we must have a timely, accurate, and professional presence on the web. This will enhance understanding of The Army's Vision and roles in support of the Nation.

WWW.ARMY.MIL supports the overall mission of the Department of the Army by providing official, timely and accurate information about Army policies, organizations, functions and operations. WWW.ARMY.MIL provides another starting point for finding military information online in conjunction with the Department of Defense web site "DefenseLINK" and the other Services' web sites.

Information available at WWW.ARMY.MIL is consistent with Army and DoD policies and the Principles of Information and has been cleared for public release. Information intended for the internal Army audience is available through Army Knowledge Online (AKO) at www.us.army.mil.

CENTCOM Chief Discusses Iraqi Civil Defense Forces

In coming months, more new Iraqi civil defense forces will be assisting U.S. troops in security and stabilization efforts in Iraq, the U.S. Central Command (CENTCOM) commander recently told members of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Gen. John Abizaid and Ambassador L. Paul Bremer III, the senior U.S. civilian in Iraq, were on Capitol Hill to answer senators' questions about the president's $87 billion supplemental budget proposal for Iraq security operations and reconstruction. Abizaid said Iraqi troops are working side-by-side with American units in military operations against insurgents — such as during a current operation in the Ar Ramadi area west of Baghdad. More Iraqi troops are being trained by U.S. forces, and they will help Coalition forces to maintain a stable environment and even to conduct combat operations, according to Abizaid. MORE

Rumsfeld: Plan to Win Peace in Iraq Will Succeed

Two weeks into Operation Iraqi Freedom, a number of newspapers and many airwaves were filled with prognosticators declaring the war plan a failure. The United States, they said, did not do enough to build international support, did not properly anticipate the level of resistance by Iraqis, and failed to send

ARMY PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Public Affairs fulfills the Army's obligation to keep the American people and the Army informed and helps to establish the conditions that lead to confidence in America's Army and its readiness to conduct operations in peacetime, conflict and war. The Office of the Chief of Public Affairs (OCA) web site provides a wealth of valuable resources for the American public, civilian media representatives and Army public affairs personnel. Within OCA's site can be found press releases, press kits, a calendar of special Army events, transcripts of speeches, community relations links and more. The OCA web site also offers searchable collections of Army photographs and a portal into the Army News Service, which provides timely and relevant articles on topics of interest to an Army-wide audience. Soldiers Radio and Television services and programs, including Soldiers Radio Live, Army NewsWatch and Pentagon Newsbreak can also be accessed through the OCA Web site, as can Soldiers Magazine, the official magazine of the United States Army.

OEF/OIF

Following the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, the U.S. Army responded to the nation's call and began fighting a Global War on Terrorism. Since then, the Army has played a key role in Operation Enduring Freedom, the global multinational coalition effort to combat terrorism. As part of Operation Enduring Freedom, the Army helped liberate Afghanistan from the repressive rule of the Taliban regime, which sponsored Osama bin Laden the suspected mastermind of the terrorist attacks, and his Al Qaeda network. Soldiers continue to work and fight in Afghanistan, making sure that the terrorists cannot regain a foothold in that country. Currently, the Army is also playing a vital role in Operation Iraqi Freedom, which liberated the people of Iraq from the repressive regime of Saddam Hussein, and eliminated his ability to develop weapons of mass destruction. As part of Operation Iraqi Freedom, Soldiers are now helping rebuild Iraq, rounding up remaining supporters of Saddam's regime and setting the stage for a free and prosperous Iraq.
